

Compassionate Comprehension with the Common Core TEXTS FOR CONSIDERATION to use with the 5 Key Questions in CC/CC

© 2015, 2017 by Linda K. Williams LKW_BetterWorld@yahoo.com

Books Matter: A quote from www.ADL.org

È Books have the potential to create lasting impressions.

È They have the power to • instill empathy • affirm children's sense of self • teach about others
• transport to new places, and • inspire actions on behalf of social justice.

II. Suggested/ Recommended Texts

A. My personal favorites

1. Texts which I selected to give to our CC/CC case study classroom teachers

2. More of my personal favorites (picture and chapter books, fiction and non-fiction)

B. Multiple lists of Suggested/ Recommended Texts

I. FAMILIAR and/or REQUIRED TEXTS:

Teachers may wish to use only texts which are familiar to them, and/or texts which are required for their grade/ subject when having students answer the 5 Key Questions.

* CC/CC was designed to be used with almost any teacher-selected texts, and almost all fiction and many non-fiction texts will serve quite well.

* ANY books with a plot can be used --- i.e., WHO wanted WHAT but WHAT, so WHAT --- having students explore characters' feelings at each point in the plot.

* Many non-fiction texts can also be used, including History texts, news reports, etc. e.g. Hurricanes: Earth's Mightiest Storms by Patricia Lauber, is a non-fiction CA Standards recommended book which can easily be used with the CC/CC Key Questions.

* Even math word problems can be used to encourage students to practice empathy and identify feelings. (e.g., "How do you think they felt when 4 of their 8 cookies fell on the floor and were gobbled up by the dog?")

II. Suggested/ Recommended Texts:

If teachers would like to expand upon the above selections, there are MANY texts which I would like to suggest you consider, which fall into a number of categories:

A. MY PERSONAL FAVORITES -- as of 6-23-17, Offered below are texts which I highly recommend for CC/CC including a number of which I've used and loved over the years. I'm constantly discovering and falling in love with new books which would make powerful springboards for CC/CC; let me know if you want updates, as available! LKW :- ) LKW_BetterWorld@yahoo.com
